San Diego

Mercy Air is a full-service air medical transport system that has served California and Nevada for 25 years. We provide safe, rapid transport by helicopter of critically ill and injured patients, and our aircraft are available 24/7/365, with overlapping service areas of coverage that help ensure a helicopter is readily available for your needs. We are owned and operated by Air Methods Corporation, the nation's leading provider of air medical transport and the most experienced air medical operator in the industry.

San Francisco

California Shock Trauma Air Rescue (CALSTAR) is a nonprofit, regional air ambulance service that provides rapid medical transport to critically ill or injured patients utilizing a team of two registered critical care nurses. CALSTAR's community service includes both rotor and fixed wing programs, operating from nine bases in California.

San Francisco & San Diego REACHSM
Air Medical Services

Since 1987, REACH has provided emergency air medical services to critically ill and injured patients, responding to 911 calls and hospital transfer requests, completing more than 100,000 successful patient transports. The company has expanded to more than 20 bases of operation with nearly 500 employees in California, Oregon & Texas.
